From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 20.

Leiden, April 20.

WE have Letters from Constantinople of the 11th of February last which say, that after the Celebration of the Beiram, or Easter of the Turks, which they kept on Christmas-Day, the Grand Vizier had held a Council compos'd only of the Grand Vizier and the chief Bashaws: That they had resolv'd to wage War, and that Orders were given to make great Preparations by Sea with all possible Diligence; that 40 great Ships were to be got ready, besides 50 Galleys, and the Corsairs of Barbary: That it was not yet known what Number of Land-Forces were to be employ'd, nor against whom these Preparations were made: But that the Sultan had since chang'd his Mind, and had resolv'd not to fall out with any foreign Potentate: That nevertheless he us'd all his Endeavours to raise what Sums he could, and had sent into the White-Sea 6 Men of War, and several Galliots to drive thence the Privateers that infested it: That he had likewise sent into the Black-Sea several Galliots and Brigantines to carry Troops and Ammunition to the Forts that have been lately built on the Coasts of it: And that the Testadar, and several other Officers had been put out of their Employments.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated April 19.

Venice, April 6. We have Advice from Constantinople, that the Sultan has disapprov'd the Invasion that Zalem Coia had made in Calabria, and commanded that the Slaves should be set at Liberty.

From the Harlem Courant, dated April 19.

Venice, April 6. Letters from Constantinople of the 14th of last Month say, that the Sultan continu'd in his Resolution of not coming to a Rupture with the Christians: That only 3 Ships of the first Rate, and 3 of the Third were fitted out, to cruise against the Capers that infested the Navigation of the Dardanelles, and that the Workmen and Seamen were dismiss'd. The first Sultana is brought to Bed of a Son, and another of Twins, for which great Rejoycings have been made at the Port.

From the Paris Gazette, dated April 14.

Constantinople, January 4. They write from the Island of Santorini in the Archipelago, Situate about 28 Leagues to the Northward of the City of Candia, of the 1st of December last, that an Island was sprung up from out of the Sea, which in that place is vastly deep: That this Island is form'd of Stones thrown up by a Volcano that is under the Ground at the bottom of the Sea, and that has often produc'd the like Effects, and in the same Manner. In the Year 726, in the Reign of the Emperour Leo Mauricus, an Island was form'd there, and call'd the Burnt-Island, from the Matter that was Vomited up and cast into a Heap by this Volcano: In 1427, the Month of November, this Burnt-Island was enlarged by the great Rocks which the Subterranean Fires threw up. In 1650, in the Month of September, the Volcano took Fire again, and produc'd the same Effects, without forming any Island, but only a Bank six Fathom under Water, in a Sea that has no Bottom. And lastly in the Month of November last, 1707, the Volcano produc'd an Island, that was already two Miles round, and grew yet bigger and bigger on the 1st of December, by the Rocks and new Matter that were Spew'd out. This last Conflagration was preceded, like all the former, by violent Earthquakes, follow'd by thick Clouds of Smoak that came out of the Sea in the Day-time, and by Flames of Fire in the Night, attended by a dreadful Roaring from under Ground. The Effects of this Volcano under the Sea, has no Example upon Land, and what renders them Credible is, that the Island of Santorini is almost all compos'd of burnt Rocks and Pumice-stones: However it produces some Corn, though it hath neither Rivers nor Springs, nor indeed any other Water but what is kept in Cisterns.

From the Amst. and Leid. Gazettes, dated April 20.

Vienna, April 7. We have Advice that the Plenipotentiaries of his Imperial Majesty have declar'd to the Diet at Presbourg, that the Emperour persist'd in his Resolution to continue that Assembly, till they had taken due Measures to Redress the Grievances of the Hungarians, and to re-establish and confirm that People in their ancient Liberties and Priviledges: Upon which the Cardinal of Saxe-Zeytz return'd them Thanks in the Name of the Diet. M. Heister is return'd hither from Hungary, where he has been to visit all the Posts, and to give the necessary Orders for the Troops to take the Field very early. Prince Ragotski is return'd to Erla, from the Frontiers of Transylvania. Count Maximilian of Staremburg, who was taken Prisoner by the Malecontents some time ago, found means to make his Escape, but has been since re-taken, and is carry'd to Mongatz. We have Advice that Count Berezeni hearing that the Emperour had given the Command of his Army in Hungary to General Heister, declar'd openly at Table, that he was an Experienc'd Officer, and would not fail to cut out Work for the Malecontents, and that he retir'd that Day into the Towns of the Mountains. We hear too that Count Caroli, and several other General Officers have quitted the Service of the Malecontents: Their Parties nevertheless continue to make Incursions, and commit great Disorders wherever they come; they have lately defeated two Imperial Parties, one at Five Churches, and the other at Stamfen. According to our Advices from Great Waradin, the Diet which the Malecontents held at Tascboult is ended; and that it having been represented there, that the Inhabitants of the Country were intirely stripp'd of all their Money, it was resolv'd by the Diet, that each Farm should furnish an Ox to Prince Ragotski, and that accordingly they had already brought in to him Ten thousand; and that several foreign Merchants were come to Erla to buy them of him.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated April 20.

Hambourg, April 13. Our Letters from the Head-Quarters of the Swedes at Smorgau of the 26th of March say, that the King of Sweden was to break up the next Day with his whole Army, and to march directly to the Czar, who had posted himself with the gross of his Army under the Cannon of Smolensko, where he had thrown up very strong Intrenchments round his Camp, and 'tis believ'd would wait there for the Enemy, so that 'tis not doubted but that there will be a bloody Action between them.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated April 21.

Hambourg, April 17. Our Letters from Poland say, that the Swedish Army march'd on the 28th of last Month towards Biekow, a strong Place in the White Russia, in order to attack it, and proceed afterwards to Mobilow, where there is a great Magazin. A Loaf of Bread that weighs a Pound and half is sold in the Swedish Army for 18 Polish Gros-ses, (about 18 Pence English) and a Goose for four Guilders. A Detachment of Swedish Wallachians has defeated 26 Troops of Ogiński's Forces, and taken taken 700 of them Prisoners, together with 20 Standards and 6 pair of Kettle-Drums. The Czar continues at Bialowitza.

Dantzick, April 12. The King of Sweden will find it very difficult to march forward, and 'tis said, that his Troops, endeavouring to force some Passes have been repuls'd three several times by the Muscovites, who have kill'd at least 2 or 3000 of them.

Dresden, April 14. Our Advices from Upper Poland say, that King Stanislaus was come to Warsaw, and had given Audience to the French Minister. The Waywode of Kozia has got ready a strong Detachment, to make an Incursion into Upper Poland. King Stanislaus has propos'd some new Articles of Accommodation to the Confederated Poles, particularly to the Great Field Marshal, but to no purpose, for they will not listen to them. The Cossack General Mazeppa is arriv'd with his Troops in Podolia; but the abovemention'd Field-Marshal has sent to let him know, that he must not continue there, the Country being already well nigh ruin'd.
